From the Parochial Vicar's Desk...

Thank you for visiting our Stewardship fair and taking the time to fill out the stewardship cards of time, talent and treasure. Again, putting to good use what the Lord has entrusted you with will produce a rich harvest. (See The Parable of the Talents Matthew 25:14-30).

Additionally, thank you for the attention given to Fr. Erineo this weekend. We are reminded of the great virtue of humility in this weekend's gospel. Let us also be able to lower ourselves to meet at eye level those who need our attention and more importantly the attention of Christ such as the orphans Fr. Erineo cares for in Uganda. For more information on the Miryante Orphanage and to sponsor a child please visit <https://miryanteorphanage.org>.

EVERY SUICIDE IS TRAGIC

Proponents of doctor-assisted suicide try to draw a sharp distinction between those with a mental illness who want to end their lives and those with a terminal illness who express the same wish. They even insist we should not call the latter “suicide,” contrary to the plain meaning of the word. This is a tragically false distinction with far-reaching consequences.

DOCTOR-ASSISTED SUICIDE ABANDONS VULNERABLE INDIVIDUALS

Even among terminally ill patients, a request to die is nearly always a cry for help.<sup>1</sup> This request is a distress signal indicating that something in the patient’s condition—at the medical, psychological, or social level—has not been adequately attended to.

Studies show that the desire for death in terminally ill individuals generally correlates with both physical pain and poor social support. When comfort or relief is offered in the form of more adequate treatment for depression, better pain management, or more comprehensive palliative care, the desire for death typically vanishes. In the Netherlands, for example, the request for “hastened death” was withdrawn by 85% of patients when their symptoms were better controlled.<sup>2</sup>

Suicidal individuals—with or without a terminal illness—typically do not want to die; they want to escape what they perceive to be an intolerable situation, and they inaccurately believe that suicide is their only way out. The patient requesting assisted suicide is often asking, “Does anyone want me to be alive, or care enough to talk me out of this request and support me through this difficult time?”

Among terminally ill individuals, a request to die is often associated with a potentially treatable mental disorder such as depression or anxiety. Yet alarmingly, in Oregon, where assisted suicide has been legal since 1997, fewer than 5% of individuals who die by assisted suicide are ever referred for psychiatric or psychological evaluation to rule out the most common causes of suicidal thinking—and the percentage of those receiving such an evaluation is steadily decreasing.<sup>3</sup>

DOCTOR-ASSISTED SUICIDE ENABLES SUICIDE

While individuals who are at risk for suicide often contemplate and formulate suicidal plans, and some may show warning signs, they are often ambivalent about ending their lives. The actual suicide attempt is often done impulsively, in the midst of an acute crisis or while intoxicated or emotionally distressed.

A journalist tracked down the few dozen individuals who survived jumping off the Golden Gate Bridge, which is the #1 suicide spot in the world.<sup>4</sup> He asked them what was going through their minds in the four seconds between jumping off the bridge and hitting the water. Every one of them responded that they regretted the decision to jump. One man said, “I realized that all the problems in my life that I thought were unsolvable were actually solvable—except for having just jumped.” To abandon individuals who have lost hope—under the guise of “respecting their autonomy”—is irresponsible.

Furthermore, completing a suicide generally requires not just intent (which typically waxes and wanes over time) but also easy access to means. People tend to fixate on one specific plan. If that particular method isn’t readily available, they typically don’t choose an alternative method; they choose to live.<sup>5</sup> But assisted suicide increases access to a ready means to end one’s life for those who are especially vulnerable due to a terminal illness.

DOCTOR-ASSISTED SUICIDE ESCALATES SUICIDE

Advocates of assisted suicide claim it is a private decision, an exercise in personal autonomy that does not affect others. But there is a well-studied “social contagion” aspect to the behavior that can’t be ignored.

In the Netherlands, for example, the request for ‘hastened death’ was withdrawn by 85% of patients when their symptoms were better controlled.

A recent study,<sup>6</sup> which controlled for other factors that could account for the rise, showed that the permissive assisted suicide laws in Oregon and Washington have caused at least a 6% rise in overall suicide rates in those states. Additional data, although limited, enhances this distressing picture. After suicide rates had declined in Oregon in the 1990s, they rose dramatically there between 2000 and 2010—the years following the legalization of assisted suicide in 1997. By 2012, suicide rates in Oregon were 42% higher than the national average.<sup>7</sup>

We know that suicide is among the health-related behaviors that tend to spread from person to person. When a person ends his or her life, it can affect the choices of that person’s friends, as well as the choices of people at least three degrees of separation away: the friends of his or her friends’ friends.<sup>8</sup> Additionally, publicized cases of suicide lead to clusters of copycat cases—known in social science as the Werther Effect. A 2003 Swiss study, for example, showed evidence of suicide contagion following media reports of doctor-assisted suicide.<sup>9</sup> No one is an island.

LEGALIZING DOCTOR-ASSISTED SUICIDE WRONGLY COMMUNICATES THAT SOME LIVES ARE NOT WORTH LIVING

Finally, the law itself is a teacher. Our laws shape cultural attitudes toward certain behaviors and influence social norms. Laws permitting assisted suicide communicate the message that, under especially difficult circumstances, some lives are not worth living. This tragically false message will be heard not only by those with a terminal illness, but by any person struggling with the temptation to end his or her life.

Every suicide is tragic. We don’t discourage suicide by assisting suicide.

Bulletin Insert of More Happenings...

October 23, 2016

Thank you to the Parish Family, Fr. Hartge, Fr. Hahn and Fr. Dooley...

The children of June Pero would like to thank all of you for the gift of prayer and the offering of the Masses on behalf of our mother. Your expression of sympathy and kindness is greatly appreciated!

Thanks again,
Beth DelTedesco

Need a Tax Deduction?

St. Colman established an endowment fund a few years ago at The Catholic Foundation to help strengthen our household of faith. Your gifts of cash, real estate, stock and insurance are needed to make our endowment grow, giving our parish perpetual income.

Need to make a contribution for your tax deductions this year? Consider establishing a Charitable Gift Annuity or simply making a cash donation to the endowment fund before the year end.

Learn more about these and other opportunities on November 17th when a representative from The Catholic Foundation will be here to share information on donating to our Endowment Fund and how you can leave a lasting legacy here at St. Colman.

Invitations were sent to all registered members of the parish but everyone is welcome to attend!

Can't wait until the end of November to make your end-of-the-year contribution? Contact The Catholic Foundation at 614.443.8893 or visit catholic-foundation.org.

Didn't receive an invitation to this event? Most likely we don't have an active registration for you in the Parish Office or we do not have your correct address. Contact Tina in the Parish Office.

Dear Friends,

I want to thank the Parish Family and all for the wonderful card I received this week. Sometimes life seems very depressing, and it is encouraging to know my friends remember me. Now that winter is coming on, I wonder what the next season will bring.

God Bless All,
Clarence Agee

Needed: Eucharistic Ministers, Ushers, Lectors, and Servers. Please prayerfully consider joining one or more of these ministries. With our current numbers, it is possible there will be Masses where some of these roles will not be filled so as not to continuously tax those who are currently serving. Contact Tina in the Parish Office if you are interested.

Join our Usher/Greeter Team!

We would like to add more parishioners to our Usher & Greeter Team. If you would like to serve in one or both of these capacities, please contact Bob Engle: 740.335.4786 or rlenge@ameritech.net. To be an Usher doesn't mean you have to take up the collection. To be a Greeter doesn't mean you have to be an Usher or take up the collection. These are three different roles but all equally important to our Parish. Join today!

Hymnal Memorials and Donations

Envelopes printed especially for your hymnal memorials and donations are in the back of church. Please return these to the Parish Office by the first of November.
